

We have all the answers.

We want your experience of supply to be as positive as possible. We fully appreciate the benefit of long term working relationships and your dedicated named consultant will be on hand to deal with any queries that arise along the way. In the meantime, please find below the answers to some important questions that you may have.

How can I be as prepared as possible before I go to each school?

We appreciate how daunting it can be going in to different schools each day, each have their own ethos, behaviour policy etc; The expertise and local knowledge of our team will ensure that you are well equipped to do this. We will provide as much information as possible on each school we ask you go to, most of which we will have long standing working relationships with.

How will I keep a breast of developments with teaching if I am working on supply?

We hold regular seminars on a variety of subjects delivered by education experts so you can be assured that you are keeping up to date. Classroom Management, How to be an Effective Supply Teacher and Whiteboard Training are just a few of the training opportunities we offer.

Can I be specific about where and when I work?

You can tell us exactly the kind of schools you wish to work in and how many days a week you wish to work, the decision is yours!

How and when will I get paid?

You will be paid weekly in arrears directly in to your bank account which means that the pay for any work you do one week will be credited into your bank account the following Friday.

*It's the principle that matters...
...it's the people that count.*

